

SERIALS

www.uksg.org

Contents

Editorial	71
Mini-profile: a day in the life of a serials and e-resources librarian – Hildegard Schäffler.....	73
Mini-profile: a day in the life of a consortium manager – Tom Sanville.....	75
33rd UKSG Annual Conference
Librarians and the terrible fix: economics of the big deal Theodore C Bergstrom	77
Maximizing use of library resources at the University of Huddersfield Sue White and Graham Stone	83
New models for monographs – open books Eelco Ferwerda	91
Paved with gold: an institutional case study on supporting open access publishing Jill Russell and Tracy Kent	97
‘Real Challenges in a Virtual World’ or ‘Can I get full text from ERIC and what on earth is Dialog Datastar?’ Philippa Sheail	103
The students’ view	109
General Articles
The ‘big deal’ approach to acquiring e-books: a usage-based study Terry Bucknell	126
User-driven purchasing: a pilot project to test an alternative pricing model for Springer e-book collections Sarah Thompson	135
A screen too far? Findings from an e-book reader pilot Elizabeth Mallett	140
Dangerous Citizens Online : a case study of an author–press–library partnership Rebecca Kennison, Neni Panourgia and Helen Tartar	145
KBART – improving content visibility through collaboration Sarah Pearson	150
Outside the core: working towards an industry recommended practice for supplemental journal materials Todd Carpenter	155
Would you eduID? Improving the user experience of federated access management Nicole Harris	159
Key issue
IESR: promoting use of academic e-resources in the UK Charlie Rapple and Jo Lambert	163
Spotlight on people
Profile: Mel Collier	166
People in the news: David Prosser	168
People	170
Notes for Contributors	174